Carolina GAZETTE.

LONDON, May 19.

THE men of war fitting out at Chatham, are taking in their stores, and will afterwards sail to Portsmouth to join other ships fitting out there.

The Peggy sloop, capt. Obryan, is ready to sail to Shetland, to protect the 22 vessels belonging to the herring fishery society; as also the busses belonging to the chambers of Edinburgh, Montrose, and Whitehaven.

London, May 23. From Paris we are told, that the court has issued orders for encamping several regiments in Franche-Compte, that they may be exercised in the method lately introduced, and afterwards, as the situation of affairs in Germany may require.

Yesterday the rev. Mr. Whitefield arrived in town, from South-Carolina

London, May 26. According to advices from Petersburg, all things are very quiet there and throughout the empire: Every body minds his own business only, as becomes loyal subjects, and no incident whatsoever disturbs the public tranquility.

They write from Leghorn, that the news of the conclusion of the treaty of Madrid, has been received with great joy by the merchants of that city, especially as their correspondents in Spain have sent them advice, that in consequence of the engagements entered into by that treaty, ships freighted with the products and manufactures of Tuscany, will be admitted to trade freely in all the ports of that kingdom, and that Spanish vessels are to enjoy the same privilege in the ports of Tuscany; but as the latter will always be in danger of falling into the hands of the Barbary corsairs, it is evident that the Tuscan merchants will have all the advantages of this treaty on their side.

According to a private letter from Basil in Switzerland, the French have actually encamped a body of horse and foot in the neighbourhood of Besancon in Franche Compte; upon which the canton of Berne has taken the alarm, and issued the necessary orders for encamping the like number of troops in their own territories; which, as is very natural, occasions many speculations.

By a letter from Ireland, we have an account, that orders have been given for searching the houses of roman catholicks for arms.

Sunday being the birth day of his royal highness the prince of Wales, who then entered into the 15th year of his age the same was observed with the usual demonstrations of joy.

On sunday evening Mr. Whitefield preach'd an hour and half in Moorfields, to a numerous crowd of people.

Last week several boys were sent (to serve as apprentices) on board the society's busses lying in the river Thames. Some of them were put out by parishes; others brought by their distressed parents; and thus (probably) sav'd from ruin; they are all to be cloathed in the like uniform, and serve 7 years. They will be employed about 6 months in the Shetland and Yarmouth fisheries; and the other half-year, be on the shore of Southwold in Suffolk, where they will have a great variety of occupations, on occasion of the busses, nets, casks, &c. The above apprentices prove evidently (in miniature) the great advantages which will accrue to this nation when their numbers come to be very large; since every boy now taken by the society from the parish is a diminution of the poor's rates; and every such boy, who serves his time in the society's service, may be an addition to our naval strength.

May 28 While the gazettes of almost all the countries in Europe are big with important negociations, extraordinary consultations, or immense Preparations: which excite wonder, attention, or surprize! the news-papers of Great Britain, and more especially the best authorized, are as silent as if nothing was done or expected. Vauxhall and Ranelagh are the great scenes of action. A masquerade is an affair of great concern; the last intrigue of an actress is matter of general inquiry; a matrimonial quarrel makes more noise than the stealing the French marquis; and, in short, politicks have so entirely given way to pleasure, and a genteel taste has so effectually rooted out that old-fashion'd humour, application, as to banish from amongst polite people all other business than——— pure amusement.
